Engineering Manager – Cloud Networking

Job Summary

With our rapid growth within Cloud Networking space, we need to scale our software engineering team! If you are an experienced engineering manager looking to take the next step and want to help build out services that will affect how the next generation of internet backbone infrastructure is delivered to the world, join our team!

Responsibilities

In this position, you will be the manager of team in charge of delivering state of the art solutions that change customer's experience of provisioning and operating inter cloud network infrastructure. You'll help teams navigate the complexities of aligning features with other teams in other parts of the company and making sure our customers can consume them in a seamless and enjoyable way. It is a software development team, so the usual agile methodologies will be required. You'll also:

Be a technical manager with experience in distributed systems architecture and cloud platforms.

Partner with product owners and other customer facing partners to understand market needs, quickly translating them into demonstrable software.

Deal with ambiguity and drive to the heart of problems - when developing / managing an internal platform, sometimes you participate in the "what" just as much as the "how".

Recruit, lead, and manage a team of software engineers.

Deeply care about technology, your craft and about the success of your team while finding solutions to challenging business problems.

Help drive software design and improve our system architecture, making sure components are built in a way that is conducive for rapid development and deployment onto our platform.

Qualifications
