Their huge ambition is to grow this platform and to support more machines from more categories the challenge is significant.

About the role

We are on the lookout for Engineering Managers to lead teams of mobile app engineers. Communication, collaboration, self-evaluation and a desire to improve are second nature to you, and you value good software engineering practices. You understand the need to deliver quality, alongside the need to deliver efficiently.

What you'll be doing:

Working with your team to contribute features and improvements to the app, ensuring they are robust, scalable and covered by tests

Conducting 1:1s with your team members, setting objectives that develop them towards their career goals, and evaluating their performance

Instilling a test-first attitude in our developers; helping our test engineers to write better code

Helping define and execute on a test strategy that ensures we deliver quality software

Working with your Engineering Manager peers to ensure teams are collaborating effectively and that the right choices are made

Working with everyone in the wider team: TPOs, Scrum Masters, cloud developers, UX/UI designers and embedded software engineers

Working with scrum masters on team development and monitoring metrics to assess progress

Working with TPOs and other stakeholders to assess risks and dependencies to aid decision making

Identifying new technologies and tools to help continually improve standards
